The "Little Iron Man"

Jacob Nelson Fox has qualified for that title by playing in 513 consecutive games at second base from August 6, 1955 thru the conclusion of the 1958 season. He eclipsed the major league record (477 consecutive games at second base) on August 19, 1958. The old mark was established by the late Eddie Collins from 1914 to 1918. Fox has sustained numerous spike wounds and bruises in collisions, a twisted knee, cut eye; was pinned under a fallen locker and was hit 38 times by enemy hurlers during his streak, but never failed to answer the bell. When the Sox open the 1959 campaign in Detroit on April 10th Fox will be playing his 514th consecutive game at second base.
